Name of Creator: Inquest

Extent: c75 Boxes

Administrative/Biographical History: Founded in 1981 by bereaved families, INQUEST began as a coming together of groups and individuals who were involved in campaigns about deaths in custody, including the Blair Peach, Jimmy Kelly, Liddle Towers and Richard Campbell Committees. A time of social and political upheaval marked by economic decline, INQUEST was part of a broader movement for racial and social justice that flourished in the 1980s.

INQUEST was set up to help the families and friends of people who die as a result of state violence and neglect. From its inception, INQUEST has fought for fairer investigation systems (including the provision of legal aid), better treatment of bereaved families, and it has challenged the way that state impunity, cover-ups and false narratives have thwarted the possibility of meaningful justice.

While INQUEST has grown and changed since the 1980s, it has been uncompromising in its values and has continued to fight for the same things: truth, justice and accountability. In the 1980s the small team of two staff members focused on a wide variety of cases including: police, prison, mental health, deaths at work, disasters and medical negligence.

As the organisation grew, deaths in custody – police, prison, mental health and immigration – became the specific focus of the charity. INQUEST also works on other deaths involving the state, including the Hillsborough football disaster and the Grenfell Tower fire.

Throughout its lifespan, INQUEST has been committed to several key areas of work that are reflected in its archive e.g., women in prison, the disproportionate deaths of racialised peoples in custody, restraint, mental health, and deaths of children and young people in prison. Campaigning alongside families, supporters and lawyers, the charity continues to support families, hold institutions to account, and push for transformative change to prevent future deaths.

Custodial History: Deposited with Bishopsgate Institute by INQUEST between 2022 and 2024.

Scope and Content: Administrative archive of campaign group, INQUEST, including: Inquest annual reports, including Inquest North West annual report 1982-1983, 1982-2006; Inquest staff meetings minutes, 1998-2002; Press releases compiled and shared by Inquest, 1982-1999; Promotional materials including publications and ephemera created and published by INQUEST, art and events inspired and in support of INQUEST's work, and t-shirts and tote bags, 1986-2020; press cuttings, journal articles and other extracts featuring

INQUEST/20/5 Jim Heather-Hayes

1982-1987

Prison censors had failed to act on his letters of distress that he sent home and failed to inform prison governor who sentenced Heather-Hayes to solitary confinement. Important case, as it was the first time (following a legal judgement by Divisional Court arising out of Richard Campbell case) that a lack of care verdict had been accepted at an inquest on a self-inflicted death. Shift in terms of lack of care suggesting general liability rather than pointing the finger at an individual, which opened the door for similar verdicts in prison and police custody cases, making it easier for families and friends to campaign for action. In 1983 there was an inquiry into Ashford Remand Centre and the inspector was critical. Unemployed. On Remand for arson at a police station. Hanged. Important for INQUEST. Press and Parliamentary interest. Includes: Media programme for play 'Death in Custody' by John L. Hughes (n.d.)

INQUEST/20/7 Colin Roach

1983-1986

INQUEST case file regarding Colin Roach. Roach died from a gunshot wound inside Stoke Newington Police station. Various evidence points towards suicide not being the cause of Roach's death. The death of Roach spurred protests and demands for an independent inquiry. The Roach Family Support Group commissioned its own independent inquiry (input of Stuart Hall), which published the book, Policing in Hackney: 1945-84, in 1989. Huge press interest and important for INQUEST. Campaign infiltrated by spy cops. Includes: - papers and campaign materials, including material regarding the Inquiry into policing in Hackney, materials produced by the Islington and Hackney Defence Campaign, Stoke Newington and Hackney Defence Campaign and the Roach Family Support Committee; press cuttings regarding Colin Roach, the inquest and inquiry; confidential notes and a transcript of the inquest (1983-1986).

INQUEST/20/14 Omasase Lumumba

INQUEST case file regarding Omasase Lumumba. taken to segregation unit at Pentonville Prison under restraint and inquest jury returned unlawful killing verdict due to prison officers using 'excessive force and improper methods during the course of control and restraint'. Nobody tried or charged in connection and all officers were still working at Pentonville (1993). Death highlights abhorrent practices of imprisoning those seeking asylum. Context of the Lumumba family – immigration officer's lack of awareness – he feared having to return to Zaire, however he was earmarked for speedy deportation and sent to Pentonville. Treated like any other prisoners. Alarm bells were rung about this behaviour and mental state, doctors decided he should be transferred to prison hospital but after refusing to return to his cell, he was put in the segregation unit before later an attempt being made to transfer him to hospital. Refusing to move, he was put under control and restraint and but back into segregation in a strip cell. Officers laid him face down, pinned his arms behind him and held his legs down. Scissors were used to remove his clothing, horrific account of officers restraining and assaulting him 'What is clear is that such was the force used that when the doctor arrived in the cell, he found Omasase still under restraints. His body was limp, and he was dead.' Internal inquiry conducted by Governor of Whitemoor Prison before inquest. CPS decided there was insufficient evidence to bring charges. No legal aid and requests for advance disclosure were rejected so it was not possible to prepare for the inquest on equal terms. INQUEST worked with The Joint Council For the Welfare Of Immigrants (JCWI) in producing a Charter for Detainees.

INQUEST/20/15 Michael Jamieson

1991-1997

INQUEST case file for Michael Jamieson. On 24 January 1991, Jamieson took his own life while serving a long sentence of imprisonment. At the inquest which followed HM Coroner for North Humberside and Scunthorpe directed the jury not to return a verdict in which the words "lack of care" formed a part. The jury found that the deceased had killed himself by hanging. Roy Jamieson, the brother of the deceased, sought and obtained leave to move for an order of judicial review. He contended that the coroner had wrongly directed the jury not to consider a verdict of or a reference to lack of care. Includes: Casework Papers - Development and Action paper (1991) - Skeleton argument of the appellant - Note pad of notes (19 May 1993-24 April 1994) - Notice of application for leave to apply for a Judicial Review (27 September 1991) - Affidavit sworn in support of application (1991) - Mr Jamieson's application for emergency legal aid certificate (19 September 1997) - Interview with Jim Hayes at Long Lartin Prison (17 May 1991)

INQUEST/20/16 Oliver Pryce

1991-1993

INQUEST case file regarding Oliver Pryce. Mr Pryce, 30, from Wolverhampton, a former British karate international who suffered from psychiatric problems, was arrested after jumping in front of an ambulance. He died from asphyxiation in the back of a police van. An inquest jury last year returned a verdict that he had been unlawfully killed after hearing how the six officers bundled him into the van and one of them held him in a headlock. An investigation supervised by the Police Complaints Authority led to an initial decision by the Crown Prosecution Service that the officers would not be prosecuted. The case was considered again after the inquest and the CPS took counsel's advice. It re-affirmed its position last month.

INQUEST/20/17 Richard O'Brien

1995-1998

INQUEST case file regarding Richard O'Brien. O'Brien was arrested at a christening party at a pub in South London. In the presence of his child he was restrained by police face down, Alison and Richard Charles maintain he called out 'I can't break, let me up, you win'. Police denied these words and their racially abusive language and claiming that Richard was being drunk and violence. At Walworth Police Station, Alison and Richard Charles were informed that Richard had been moved to King's College Hospital, where he was announced dead on arrival. Alison waged an epic battle with INQUEST's support. 10 months after Richard died it was announced that no police officer would be charged with a criminal offence. Inquest took place in 1995 and jury took only 40 minutes to return a unanimous unlawful killing verdict. Coroner referred the case to DPP for further consideration which they did not overturn → Alison allied with widow of Shiji Lapite and Derek Treadway to put forth a joint application for judicial review. All 3 cases were sent back for further consideration and systemic failures were exposed → Attorney General appointed Gerald Butler, QC to conduct a judicial inquiry that instituted radical interim measures, which prevent the DPP from taking sole responsibility in deaths in custody cases. Three Metropolitan Officers who were charged in manslaughter (never suspended from duty) were acquitted in July 1999. Includes: Folder One - Inquest notes, 1995. Folder Two - correspondence between INQUEST, family lawyers, etc. with CPS - Judicial Review papers (1995-1997) Folder Three - correspondence between INQUEST, family lawyers, etc. with CPS, Metropolitan Police, MPS, etc (1995-1998) Folder Four - Judicial Review papers, correspondence with Metropolitan Police, lawyers, etc. (1995-1997)

INQUEST case file regarding Jimmy Mubenga. In 2006, on a BA flight from Heathrow Airport to Angola, Jimmy Mubenga died while under restraint of G4S security guards. A disagreement broke out between Mubenga and G4S security, Mubenga was then restrained and dragged to his seat on the BA chartered flight. While being restrained, Jimmy Mubenga was heard pleading for help while shouting, "I can't breathe" & "They're killing me, they're killing me." Shortly afterwards, Mubenga became unconscious and while the plane was preparing for take off, G4S staff checked Mubenga for signs of life and could not find a pulse. After calling an ambulance, paramedics assessed Mr Mubenga where they pronounced him dead at the scene. Shortly after the case became public, it was revealed that the three guards involved had an economic incentive to ensure that the flight departed. This may have been a contributing factor as to why they were so persistent and forceful when handling Mr Mutengba. It was revealed that the guards stood to lose £170 each if the deportation did not go ahead as planned. British Airways also faced financial penalties if the flight was delayed. Includes: Folder One - Public Inquest papers up to 9 July 2013 Folder Two - Public Judicial Review papers for Inquest up to 13 February 2013 Folder Three - Public claim papers and campaign materials post 13 February 2013 - casework notes and legal aid correspondence up to 2014
